SCHOOL BOARD GRANTS PERMIT UNDER PLEDGE.

Refuses Permission for War Lectures—Colored School Wants to Compete in Temperance Essays.

That was a situation brought out at a meeting of the board of education at the Franklin School yesterday afternoon and thereby hangs a tale:

Congress last year passed a statute designed to prevent pupils in the public schools from being called on for funds. The legislative body, in order that there might be no drains on the pockets of the school children, took away from the board of education its discriminatory privileges and cited specifically the only cases in which money might be asked of the pupils on school premises.

As a result of this legislation it has been impossible for the children to aid the Belgians, to contribute to the pool of this city, to give entertainments for the purpose of raising equipment for dramatics and numerous activities. The only clause under which money can be solicited provides that it may be asked only for "athletic purposes, playgrounds and school publications."

Therefore certain school activities have suffered.

Cadets Outwit Congress. Capt. J. B. Mahoney of Company E and L. J. McCarthy of Company G, both of the Business High School, desired to give an entertainment at one of the local theaters to raise money for paying the cadets of the school in their companies to the White Lot when they go there to drill, and to pay for lunches for the boys on certain occasions. The act of Congress appeared as an insurmountable wall to many.
